

#1 Tokyo Narita

Public Transportation (20 - 40w)

You can make the 60 km journey between Tokyo Narita Airport (NRT) and Tokyo city center by train. Japan Railways runs services between Tokyo city center and Narita Airport for around 8.50 euros, with the journey lasting about an hour and a half. Trains to Narita city center cost around 1.50 euros. You can board trains at Narita Airport or Terminal 2. There is also a Limousinebus shuttle service which makes the journey for around 24 euros. Three different bus companies run the Via Skyliner 47, Narita Express 55, and Intercity Bus services, which all take about 60 minutes to reach the city.

Taxi (20 - 40w)

If you want to get from Tokyo Narita Airport to the city center by taxi, the journey will take about 60 minutes and will cost around 185 euros.

#2 Tokyo Haneda

Public Transportation (20 - 40w)

The 25 km journey between Tokyo Haneda Airport (HND) and the city center can be made using either train or bus services. The train takes around 20 minutes and costs about 4.50 euros, while the Limousinebus shuttle makes the 50-minute journey for around 7 euros.

Taxi (20 - 40w)

A taxi from Tokyo Haneda Airport to the city center will cost between 50 and 60 euros, and an additional cost of about 10 euros will be payable for night-time tariffs.